SUSHI, ISRAEL, AND MAINE

An exhibition, in collaboration with the Haifa Tikotin Museum of Japanese Art, will be opening on January 9 at the Maine Jewish Museum in Portland. 'Japanese Sushi Girls,' created by Hedva Rokach and curated by Dr. Ety Glass-Gisis, is about Japanese women who decided to support the IDF during the current war by making sushi for the troops. These women, the artist explained, decided to live in Israel and bind their fate with that of the Jewish people 'and show solidarity even during such a difficult time.'

Shown until Friday, February 28. 267 Congress St, Portland. Visit mainejewishmuseum.org for more
